OLD ALGIERS

Nestled in the curve of the west bank of the Mississippi River, Old Algiers is New Orleans' Best Kept Secret®! Founded in 1719, it was part of the original land grant to Jean Baptiste Le Moyne, Sieur de Bienville. The area encompasses the neighborhoods of Algiers Point, Algiers Riverview, Tunisburg/McClendonville and an area often referred to as McDonogh. The Algiers Point Historic District is inside this larger historic community, bounded by the river on two sides and by Atlantic and Newton Streets on the other two.

The area is rich in jazz history and authentic New Orleans culture, which, as Ellis Marsalis said, "bubbles up from the streets." Many of the early jazz musicians lived and worked in Old Algiers, even as they plied the river on the boats that traveled as far as Chicago, spreading the nation's only indigenous form of music. The Jazz Walk of Fame honors some of these musicians, and the historic Algiers Courthouse Carriage House features a display of photographs of places and people of jazz. Additionally, several of the early haunts remain, and their rehabilitation is a focus of Old Algiers Main Street Corporation.

The Algiers/Canal Street Ferry, in operation since 1828, is an important landmark and provides transportation to many residents, downtown workers and visitors. Just steps away is Blaine Kern's Mardi Gras World, where floats are created not only for Mardi Gras, but for Disney and Macy's as well. Throughout the community are homes and commercial buildings dating from before the turn of the 20th century in many architectural styles, from Queen Anne to Arts and Crafts bungalows to shotgun doubles.

Once a year, in April, Old Algiers Main Street Corporation celebrates the history and culture of this unique area at Old Algiers RiverFest.™ Traditional jazz, arts, crafts, food and fun overflow the riverbanks, where the jazz music was born more than a century ago.
